

BIG AMUSEMENT HALL AT SCHOFIELD NEAR COMPLETION

$6,000 Building Thoroughly Equipped, Constructed by Second Infantry

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Sept. 7.—Lieutenant Booth of the Second Infantry has about completed the handsome amusement hall that has been under construction during the past three months. The building and equipment are greatly needed and will answer the purpose for which built in a splendid way.

The building is 112x76 feet in exterior dimensions with the main auditorium 90x50. A stage 35x30, with all necessary equipment as to electric lighting fixtures, scenery and handsome drop curtain will place Schofield Barracks on the entertainment circuit.

The main room will seat 500 and by using the side corridors 800 can be accommodated. The latest model moving picture machine of the Edison type has been installed, and it is Lieut. Booth's plan to connect with the latest released films and first-run pictures.

Well equipped dressing rooms with shower baths, lavatories, etc., have been provided and the house will actually rank as a first-class place for amusement.

The installation of a complete electric light plant is practically all that is necessary to be done before the hall will be opened.

The local theatres in Honolulu have generously offered to open the new house with a monster benefit performance, sending out their best talent for the occasion.

Roller skating is promised as a feature, for which a specially built floor of Oregon pine has been provided. That amusement, with boxing contests, will draw heavily and a financial success is reasonably certain.

The hall will also be available for hops, both for enlisted men and the officers' circle; and will be a great improvement in size and comfort over the smaller space in the officers' mess of the Fifth Cavalry, now used for the bi-weekly dance.

Lieut. Booth has shown great enterprise and executive ability in carrying out the plans of the Post Exchange Council and the institution will be both a money-maker and amusement center.

The total cost of building and equipment is about $6,000, the funds coming from the general funds of the Second Infantry Post Exchange.

An unique musical entertainment is already under preparation under the guidance of Chief Musician Leigh of the Fifth Cavalry, and may be offered as the opening attraction.

PRIMARIES ARE IN PROGRESS, WILL FIGHT IN BUT FOUR PRECINCTS

Republicans Near Harmony
After Dissensions of Hot Campaign

With the primary elections in progress, this afternoon, the indications are that save in four precincts where two states have been in evidence and all attempts at compromise failed, the Republican party is well welded together again following the dissensions of the campaign.

The dove of peace, long given up as lost, winged a weary way into the ninth of the fourth last night when Murray and Fogarty, heading opposing tickets, withdrew as candidates, in the interest of harmony, but their two tickets are up to the voters.

The only other real battle is being waged in the First of the Fourth, where there are said to be four or five tickets. The strongest are those of Logan and Berndt and between them the issue lies.

Judging by a letter to the public published this morning, J. Ashman Beaven has reckoned without his host in counting noses on the ticket with which he is opposing the one headed by Mr. Ballentyne. In this letter six persons who appear on Beaven's ticket repudiate it, announcing their endorsement of the Ballentyne slate.

In the downtown precincts of the Fifth the only fight is in the ninth, while Sgt. Mahelone, the precinct leader, is being opposed by Eddie Moreno. Over in Hauula, the third of the fifth, two slates are in the field, but at Kahuku Andy Adams seems to reign supreme.

A Japanese steamer passenger in the Toyo Kisen Kaisha liner Kiyu Maru, en route from Japan to Central America, attempted to leave the vessel last night by leaping over the side as she lay at Alakes wharf.

The noise occasioned by the man falling into the water and his struggles to gain the land brought several police officers to the scene.

Placed under arrest, the Japanese gave the name of H. Tsuji and declared that he had become tired of the humdrum life aboard the freighter and immigrant ship and wanted to remain in the islands.

The Japanese was very scantily clothed when caught and given lodgment at the police station.

Just before the Kiyu Maru was dispatched for Central and South American ports this morning the passenger was placed on board. Investigation showed that the man was slightly demented.

A cable received here states that the Pacific Mail liner China arrived at Yokohama last Wednesday. The vessel sailed from Honolulu on August 24.

HAUKU CANNERY IN BUSY SEASON

Up at the Hauku Packing Company's plant, there is a wonderful scene of activity to be observed. Three hundred busy laborers are hustling and bustling to pare, remove the cores, slice, cook and can over one hundred thousand cases of pineapples. It is a big work, and the machine-like precision with which the work goes on is worthy of a large sugar company's mill. And when it is remembered that for years the sugar people have been perfecting their systems, the compliment is obvious.

The Hauku cannery is working at top speed to take care of all the pineapples that are gathered from the fields, and every nerve is strained to keep up with the rush of pineapples from the adjoining plantations.

The cannery is well able to not only can pineapples and the by-products of the fruit, but to also make the cans that contain the fruit. The cases that the cans are packed in are also made at the cannery and it is most interesting to take a look over the whole plant.

The pineapples that are raised at Hauku are much smaller than those grown on Oahu, but the Maui pineapples are sweeter and have less fiber than those of Oahu.

The very latest type of pineapple machinery has been introduced into the Hauku cannery, and it is wonderful to notice how, as the necessity arose, the different machines were invented. The paring machines are wonders and they remove just the right amount of skin. Then take the core removing apparatus. That is a simple, yet wonderful machine, that punches the core out of each pineapple. The pine is then ready for the slicing machine and, here again, the inventor seen at his best. The pine is thrust into a concave grip and, instantly, a set of knives plunge into the fruit and slice them just the required thickness.

The sliced pines, of assorted sizes, are then placed in cans and start on a long journey, per automatic carrier, to the lid sealers, the juice distributors, the bidders and, eventually, the label department. The whole plant works like clockwork, and there is no doubt that the pineapple industry is running second to sugar as the principle industry of the islands.—Maui News.
